Going to see the Cowboys-Eagles rematch Saturday night? If you have access to the Silver Suite Level (and, really, who doesn't?), don't miss the chance to sip a glass or two at Dee Lincoln's Tasting Room and Bubble Bar, a slick wine bar from the seriously savvy steakhouse maven.

Get a taste of how the other half lives at Dee Lincoln's wine tasting spot in Cowboys Stadium.

Dee still runs Del Frisco's in Dallas but she's brought her smarts to Cowboys Stadium, opening a 1,000-square-foot watering hole for wine fans. You can get one of the sommeliers to help or you can just serve yourself from the temperature-controlled dispensers that pour wine in 2-, 4- or 6-ounce portions.

It's very clever, and here's how it works: you buy a credit card for $5 and then load it with $25 or more, then start pouring. You can spend just a few bucks for a small sample or a whole lot for a glass. The night I went, a half-glass of one very lovely cabernet was about $50, but you can find much more reasonably priced pours, too. A champagne cocktail, fashioned by a bartender, was about $15.

In all, there are 48 wines to choose from, reds and whites, too. It can get expensive, but it's sure fun. And if you're on the suites level, you're probably with a high-roller who should be picking up the tab, anyway.
